Working Paper - CIA Redraft of Draft #15

THE FOREIGN INFORMATION PROGRAM AND OVERT PSYCHOLOGICAL WARFARE

1. Foreign information programs in periods of peace and psychological warfare programs in periods of national emergency or war are permanent instruments of national policy and must be continuously directed toward the achievement of national aims. Foreign information activities and related facilities of departments and agencies of the Government comprise the essential elements of a national foreign information program and the essential nucleus for psychological warfare.

2. To achieve continuity between peacetime, national emergency and wartime plans and programs and to provide for the strengthening and coordination of all foreign information and psychological warfare activities:

a. The Secretary of State shall be responsible for:

- (1) The formulation of policy for a national foreign information program designed to influence foreign attitudes in a direction favorable to the attainment of national aims and including all foreign information activities conducted by departments and agencies of the Government.
